GENTLE TEACHING

Developed by John McGee, Ph.D., of the Gentle Teaching Institute in Omaha, Nebraska, Gentle Teaching is an international movement that seeks to create an environment of trust and engagement. The cornerstones of Gentle Teaching are developing an atmosphere for the individual of feeling safe, loved, being able to give love to others, and feeling connected with others. The Autism & Behavioral Support Center staff members have a firm commitment to the principles and cornerstones of Gentle Teaching. This approach is dedicated to nonviolence and the spirit of human interdependence and companionship. For more information, visit www.gentleteaching.com.
